

20/01/2026
 2025/2026

METHODS OF ACADEMIC WORK

Name:
 First name:

1- Answer with true or false:

16pt

All references should follow the same format.	T
The author's name is part of a reference.	T
The year of publication is not important in references.	F
Figures taken from other works must be cited	T
References are usually listed in alphabetical order.	F
A thesis can be written without any references.	F
A research paper can be written without any references	F
Wikipedia can be used as a reference in a research paper.	F
The Abstract contains a reference.	F
The thesis title contains a reference.	F
The title of a scientific article does not contain a reference.	T

2- The references according to APA style:

Book:
 Author, A.A. (Year). Title of the book. Publisher

Journal Article :

Author, A.A. (Year). Title of the article. Title of the journal, Volume, Page & Page

3- The references according to MLA style:

Book:
 Author Last Name, First Name. Title of the Book. Publisher, Year

Journal Article :

Author Last Name, First Name. "Title of the Article" Title of the journal, Vol. number, Year, Page. DOI or URL

The "Introduction" section of a scientific paper typically includes a detailed description of the methods used in the study.	F
The "Results" section of a scientific paper should include interpretations and discussions of the data.	T
The "Discussion" section often compares the study's findings with those of previous research	T
The "Acknowledgments" section can include funding sources and contributions from individuals who are not authors.	F
The "References" section should only include works that are directly cited in the paper	T
The "Abstract" should provide a concise summary of the entire paper including the background, methods, results, and conclusions.	T
The "Materials and Methods" section should be written in a way that allows other researchers to replicate the study.	T
The "Conclusion" section can introduce new data that was not discussed in the "Results" section.	F
The "Keywords" provided in a scientific paper are used to help index the paper in databases and search engines.	T
The "Title" of a scientific paper should be as long as possible to include all relevant details about the study	F
The "Abstract" is typically the first section of a scientific paper that readers encounter	T
The "Introduction" should end with a clear statement of the research question or hypothesis.	T
The "Results" section should include raw data without any statistical analysis.	F
The "Discussion" section should avoid mentioning any limitations of the study.	T
The "References" section should be formatted according to a specific citation style, such as APA, MLA, or Chicago.	T
The "Abstract" should be written before the rest of the paper to guide the writing process.	F
The "Materials and Methods" section should include all the raw data collected during the study.	F
The "Conclusion" section should summarize the main findings and their implications without repeating the "Abstract"	T
The "Acknowledgments" section can include personal thank-you notes to family and friends.	T
The "Keywords" should be chosen from a predefined list provided by the journal	F